Crites Brothers Sell Local Oil Firm

Total Purchase Price Figured Near $300,000

Standard Oil Company of Ohio announced late Tuesday that it has purchased the Crites Oil Company of Circleville, taking over the local firm's six service stations and a bulk plant.

George L. Crites, co-owner of the district firm, said the complete transaction would probably amount "close to $300,000." Standard Oil, he said, had agreed to pay approximately that sum for the land, stations and inventory of the service depots and bulk unit.

His brother Meinhardt, George Crites added, was co-owner of the oil concern which has borne the family name in this district for nearly 30 years. Had they desired to remain in the gasoline business, George Crites said, they "had the best setup in the world" for that particular line of trade.

Announcement of the completed transaction originated with J. P. Sharkey, manager of the Columbus Division for Standard Oil.

IT FINALLY set at rest persistent rumors which have been circulated here for several months. Most of these erroneous reports arose from the fact that the necessary papers had to be shuffled back and forth between Circleville and Standard's Columbus offices several times.

Recently, when witness signatures were required for the papers here—touching off a new "grapevine" report that the deal had been "closed"—Sharkey pointed out that the large oil corporation had yet to add its own signatures to complete the deal. This, his statement late Tuesday indicated, had just been done.

Actually, Crites himself expressed surprise Tuesday night when told by The Herald of Standard's announcement. He explained he had sent signed papers from here late last week, but since that time Standard had requested a minor modification of the agreement.

Crites said these final details were still under discussion Tuesday night, but assumed the matter was now completed in view (Continued on Page Two)

Slavs To Accept U.S. Food Gifts

DENVER (AP)—Communist Yugoslavia has accepted President Eisenhower's offer of a share in a $1 million American relief program for European flood victims, the Summer White House announced today.

Eisenhower's offer of surplus food went several weeks ago to Danube River and tributary area countries, west and east of the Iron Curtain.

It was accepted earlier by Soviet-dominated East Germany, Hungary and Czechoslovakia. West Germany and Austria have also accepted. The U. S. has requested the League of Red Cross Societies to get in touch with the Red Cross in Yugoslavia to work out details.

Dem Party Chief To Testify In Tennessee Power Dispute

WASHINGTON (AP)—Democratic National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell, who calls the plan "a raw deal," will have the chance Sept. 2 to tell Congress what he finds wrong with the administration's controversial contract for private power in Tennessee.

Rep. W. Sterling Cole (R-NY), chairman of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, wired Mitchell yesterday an invitation to testify on "any evidence of malfeasance or impropriety."

Mitchell was being asked to appear, Cole told the Democratic chairman, "in view of your repeated intemperate charges against President Eisenhower in this matter."

Mitchell promptly replied he was "glad" to accept the invitation and added: "I am troubled however by your telegram which characterizes my questions as 'intemperate charges.' This would seem to indicate that in advance of a hearing you have prejudged this case in such a way as to raise doubts over your ability to conduct an impartial hearing."

MITCHELL'S appearance before the committee seemed certain to mark a fresh round in the swirling dispute over President Eisenhower's order directing the AEC to contract with a private utility combine for power to be delivered over Tennessee Valley Authority lines to the Memphis, Tenn., area, TVA is to deliver power in turn to the AEC plant at Paducah, Ky.

The $107 million contract, which must still get the committee's OK, was a major issue during the Senate's marathon debate over new atomic energy legislation.

Congress wound up okaying a provision which would specifically allow the contract.

Mitchell took up the issue in Chicago last week, intimating among other things that Eisenhower's friendship with golfer

Bobby Jones influenced the award to the power combine, known as the Dixon-Yates group.

Eisenhower said he rejected innuendoes that friendship was a factor, and Mitchell said he accepted Jones' statement that he did not discuss the matter with the President.

However, the Democratic chairman repeated his questions about the contract, saying it was going to "cost the public millions of dollars." He added that his primary objection to the deal is that "only one" bid was considered in letting the proposed contract.

Ohio Checking On Decline In Cigarette Use

COLUMBUS (AP)—Ohio officials are keeping a weather eye on cigarette tax revenues that total $20 million annually.

They wonder whether recent reports on the effects of smoking will cut into the tax take or leave the yield about the same for the full year.

A sharp drop in revenues last month set State Treasurer Roger W. Tracy to wondering about the flow of taxes into Ohio's vaults. He reviewed figures for the last three fiscal years without reaching a definite conclusion.

But the study showed that cigarette consumption was low between February and May for all three years. The volume of smoking varied during the other months with peaks usually reached in October and December.

Ohio's tax is two cents on a pack of 20 cigarettes. For the fiscal year starting July 1, 1951, and ending June 30, 1952, revenue totaled $19,924,943. The total for the 1952-53 year was $20,806,182. For the 1953-54 year it slipped to $20,438,318.

The high month of October in the 1951-52 fiscal year brought in $2,087,652.

The 1953-54 fiscal peak of $1,961,823 arrived in December. The February low was $1,434,702. They fell to $1,702,000 in July, first month of the 1954-55 fiscal year.

Root To Investigate Delay In Reporting Case Of Polio

City Health Director Oscar Root said Wednesday he is trying to determine why his office was not notified of a city polio case before he learned of it through The Herald.

The case was diagnosed in Columbus last Friday. The Herald was able to confirm the details Tuesday afternoon and passed the information along to the city health chief.

The stricken child, nine and one-half year old Lynn Reicheldorfer, is under treatment at her home on E. Union St. and was reported making steady recovery. Therapy treatments have been prescribed by a Columbus specialist.

All officials familiar with the case have emphasized that it is not the responsibility of the child's parents to file the official report.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Reicheldorfer, told how Dr. O. W. Hosterman of Columbus had diagnosed the case as polio and how they have been following his orders in a program of treatment.

THEY ALSO recalled that Dr. Hosterman had instructed in Columbus to have a report forwarded here to the city health department, but such a report apparently was never received. Root and other members of the department said Tuesday, when queried by The Herald, that they knew of the case "only through the grapevine."

The case was described as "subacute." Physio-therapy treatments have been arranged at the child's home, and periodic visits are being made to Children's Hospital, Columbus.

The Reicheldorfers also have another daughter, Susan, 7.

Root said Wednesday morning he had not had an opportunity as yet to check further into the case because of other official duties. However, he said that failure to report the case to his department is a serious breach of routine.

He joined others in making it clear that such reports are supposed to be made through routine medical channels and not by the family of the person stricken.

The incident was a duplication of several in recent years.

Details of the current case were relayed to Root by The Herald shortly after 4 p. m. Tuesday. It was the first case publicly recorded for the city and county this year.

Further Study Of Anti-Red Laws Urged By Dem Backer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Jackson (D-Wash.) proposed today that the next Congress take time to do "a thorough and resolute" job in revising the laws curbing Communists, including a bill signed yesterday by President Eisenhower.

Eisenhower said in signing a measure which would strip the Communist party of its legal rights that further study will be required to determine its full impact on the enforcement of laws already on the books.

As one of the Democrats who helped put across the measure in the face of Republican opposition to attaching it to another bill, Jackson said he regards the legislation as being open to possibly extensive revisions when the next Congress meets.

"I hope that when we return in January we can do a thorough and resolute job in dealing with the Communist problem," he said. "The action Congress took on this particular bill was hasty and was done without prior committee hearings."

"BY JANUARY we should have some positive comment by the Justice Department on the workability of the new law and how it affects other statutes."

Jackson said he and other Democrats who suddenly came up with a proposal to outlaw the Communist party had no intention of hampering the operations of the Internal Security Act, under which the Justice Department is attempting to force the registration of all Communists.

Eisenhower said in signing the bill that he was satisfied that its terms "were not intended to impair or abrogate any portion of the Internal Security Act or the criminal statutes under which the leaders of the Communist party are now being prosecuted and that they may prove helpful in several respects."

Congress finally passed the bill in somewhat amended form after administration protests that the original Democrat-sponsored version would hamper its efforts against the Reds.

A Communist party spokesman said the measure will be attacked in the courts as unconstitutional and that meanwhile the organization will "continue to function as a legal party."

Navy Studies Chance Of Red Atomic Sub

WASHINGTON (AP)—The ranking American admiral in the Pacific could have been thinking about possible Russian development of an atomic submarine when he said there were no unusual Soviet submarine operations there "that we can talk about."

The Navy here is not trying to answer any of the provocative questions raised by the remark made this week by Adm. Felix B. Stump, Pacific commander in Chief. Pentagon officials merely point to the long line of warnings made from Washington in recent years about Russia's estimated strength of some 350 to 400 submarines.

Stump said about 100 were in the Pacific.

The existence of hundreds of Soviet submarines is not in itself sufficient cause for the frequently voiced official concern, for most of them are known to be old types, suitable primarily for close-in coastal defense in waters such as the Baltic and Black Seas.

Pentagon informants say, however, that the Soviets have been working intensively for years on atomic power for vessels and probably other war machines. They say the Russian search began at least as soon as the United States made it known that atomic power could be applied and that this country was going ahead with a nuclear powered submarine.

Prelim Work On Reappraisal Now Under Way

Preliminary work on a reappraisal of all real estate property in Pickaway County was under way Wednesday—with a bill of $48,000 waiting for the county when the job is finished.

Chairman Bill Goode of the board of Pickaway County commissioners disclosed Tuesday night that a contract for the work had been let to a Dayton firm. Goode explained the firm was officially hired last week, but announcement was delayed until necessary papers could be signed.

County Auditor Fred Tipton has been ill at his home for the past few weeks.

The State Board of Tax Appeals called for the complete recheck of real properties in the county, contending that appraisal and taxing methods used here have not conformed to state statute. The ruling by the state agency followed through on testimony given in Circleville at a hearing conducted by the board.

COUNTY TREASURER Bob Colville pointed out that the state does not share in meeting expenses of the county-wide reappraisal, which he said will cost $48,000.

"They ordered us to make it," he said, "and we have to pay out the money. And that was the bid made by the Dayton firm."

Colville said it would probably be a month or so before the actual work of reappraisal is started. First, he explained, forms have to be printed and other paper work has to be completed to clear the way for actual survey.

Vargas Death Brings Riots Over Nation

4 Die, Over 30 Hurt As President Takes Own Life After Ouster

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—Violence continued to flare in Brazil's capital today as a plane departed for southern Brazil with the body of Getulio Vargas. Troops fired on a crowd trying to attack the Air Ministry. Two persons were injured. In earlier rioting, two persons were killed and at least 30 injured.

Vargas, the country's strongman for 19 years, chose yesterday to give up his presidency by suicide rather than force. He fired a bullet through his heart after 58 air force and army generals forced the 71-year-old political leader to resign.

This morning while Army troops stood by, thousands of Brazilians followed the body of Vargas from the presidential palace to the city's downtown airport. The plane took off for southern Brazil, where Vargas will be buried.

Afterward a crowd gathered in front of the Air Ministry. Air Force personnel and the crowd became involved in a dispute and troops were rushed to the scene. Shots were fired to restore order.

The troops also prevented the crowd from attacking an automobile carrying Air Force officers.

CLASHES WERE reported in other sections of the city. Three persons were killed and 30 injured yesterday in clashes in Brazil. U. S. diplomatic buildings and firms, as well as newspapers which opposed Vargas, were major targets of the rioters.

Rioters burned the office of the Diarios Associados publishing and radio chain in Porto Alegre, on the Atlantic Coast, heavily damaged the U. S. consulates in Belo Horizonte and Porto Alegre, and hurled rocks through the windows of the heavily guarded U. S. Embassy in Rio.

Union Official Is Clubbed To Death

CLEVELAND (AP)—A club-wielding killer dragged a 36-year-old union official from his automobile last night and beat him to death a few houses away from his home.

The official was Raymond Weirouch, a vice president of the CIO United Auto Workers Local 515 and the union's chief steward at the Iron Fireman Stoker Co.

Police today were searching for the murderer, who fled in his car after a witness started toward the scene.

The witness was Walter Hahn, who gave this description of the slaying: Weirouch's car sped into the street, stopped suddenly and started to back into a parking place. Another car stopped at the nearby corner and Weirouch's car backed into it.

The driver ran up, dragged Weirouch from his parked automobile and clubbed him to the ground.

The president of Local 515, H. L. Sarge, said Weirouch had been a good union man and well-liked, and that he doubted the slaying had any union connection.

Weirouch was married and the father of four children.

Crites Brothers Sell Local Oil Firm

Standard Of Ohio Buys 6 Stations And Bulk Plant

Standard Oil Company of Ohio announced late Tuesday that it has purchased the Crites Oil Company of Circleville, taking over the local firm's six service stations and a bulk plant.

Dem Party Chief To Testify In The Herald Columns Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—Democratic National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell, who calls the plan "a raw deal," will have the chance Sept. 2 to tell Congress what he finds wrong with the administration's controversial contract for private power in Tennessee.

Rep. W. Sterling Cole (R-NY), chairman of the Senate House Atomic Energy Committee, wired Mitchell yesterday an invitation to testify on "any evidence of malfeasance or impropriety."

Mitchell was being asked to appear, Cole told the Democratic chairman, "in view of your repeated intemperate charges against President Eisenhower in this matter."

Mitchell promptly replied he was "glad" to accept the invitation and added:

"I am troubled however by your telegram which characterizes my questions as 'intemperate charges.' This would seem to indicate that in advance of a hearing you have prejudged this case in such a way as to raise doubts over your ability to conduct an impartial hearing."

MITCHELL'S appearance before the committee seemed certain to mark a fresh round in the swirling dispute over President Eisenhower's order directing the AEC to contract with a private utility combine for power to be delivered over Tennessee Valley Authority lines to the Memphis, Tenn., area. Ohio Checking On Decline In Cigarette Use

COLUMBUS (AP)—Ohio officials are keeping a weather eye on cigarette tax revenues that total $20 million annually.

They wonder whether recent reports on the effects of smoking will cut into the tax take or leave the yield about the same for the full year.

A sharp drop in revenues last month set State Treasurer Roger W. Tracy to wondering about the flow of taxes into Ohio's vaults. He reviewed figures for the last three fiscal years without reaching a definite conclusion.

But the study showed that cigarette consumption was low between February and May for all three years. The volume of smoking varied during the other months with peaks usually reached in October and December.

Ohio's tax is two cents on a pack of 20 cigarettes. For the fiscal year starting July 1, 1951, and ending June 30, 1952, revenue totaled $19,924,943. The total for the 1952-53 year was $20,806,182. For the 1953-54 year it slipped to $20,438,318.

The high month of October in the 1951-52 fiscal year brought in $2,087,652.

The 1953-54 fiscal peak of $1,961,823 arrived in December. The February low was $1,434,702. They fell to $1,702,000 in July, first month of the 1954-55 fiscal year.

'Saucerman' Pays Surprise Call To Norway Berry Patch

OSLO (AP)—Two Norwegian women claim they not only had a close look at a flying saucer but they talked to its "dark-skinned, long-haired" pilot. Skeptical police have launched an investigation.

The two women, Mrs. Aasta Solvang and her sister, Edit Jacobsen, said the saucerman popped out at them from behind some bushes last Friday near Mofjell, in northern Norway.

Their story was published yesterday by the local paper Nordlands Folkeblad.

This was their account:

"We were picking berries when suddenly a dark man with long hair—but otherwise looking very much like an ordinary human being—came out from behind some bushes.

"We were frightened at first, but the man appeared very friendly, and stepped toward us."

One of them addressed him in English, French, German and Norwegian. "He didn't seem to understand a word."

Root To Investigate Delay In Reporting Case Of Polio

City Health Director Oscar Root said Wednesday he is trying to determine why his office was not notified of a city polio case before he learned of it through The Herald.

The case was diagnosed in Columbus last Friday. The Herald was able to confirm the details Tuesday afternoon and passed the information along to the city health chief.

The stricken child, nine and one-half year old Lynn Reichelderfer, is under treatment at her home on E. Union St. and was reported making steady recovery. Therapy treatments have been prescribed by a Columbus specialist.

All officials familiar with the case have emphasized that it is not the responsibility of the child's parents to file the official report.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Reichelderfer, told how Dr. O. W. Hosterman of Columbus had diagnosed the case as polio and how they have been following his orders in a program of treatment.

The Reichelderfers also have another daughter, Susan, 7.

He joined others in making it clear that such reports are supposed to be made through routine medical channels and not by the family of the person stricken.

The incident was a duplication of several in recent years.

Details of the current case were relayed to Root by The Herald shortly after 4 p. m. Tuesday. It was the first case publicly recorded for the city and county this year.

Prelim Work On Reappraisal Now Under Way

Preliminary work on a reappraisal of all real estate property in Pickaway County was under way Wednesday—with a bill of $48,000 waiting for the county when the job is finished.

Chairman Bill Goode of the board of Pickaway County commissioners disclosed Tuesday night that a contract for the work had been let to a Dayton firm. Goode explained the firm was officially hired last week, but announcement was delayed until necessary papers could be signed.

County Auditor Fred Tipton has been ill at his home for the past few weeks.

The State Board of Tax Appeals called for the complete recheck of real properties in the county, contending that appraisal and taxing methods used here have not conformed to state statute. The ruling by the state agency followed through on testimony given in Circleville at a hearing conducted by the board.

COUNTY TREASURER Bob Colville pointed out that the state does not share in meeting expenses of the county-wide reappraisal, which he said will cost $48,000.

"They ordered us to make it," he said, "and we have to pay out the money. And that was the bid made by the Dayton firm."

Colville said it would probably be a month or so before the actual work of reappraisal is started. First, he explained, forms have to be printed and other paper work has to be completed to clear the way for actual survey.

Vargas Death Brings Riots Over Nation

4 Die, Over 30 Hurt As President Takes Own Life After Ouster

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—Violence continued to flare in Brazil's capital today as a plane departed for southern Brazil with the body of Getulio Vargas. Troops fired on a crowd trying to attack the Air Ministry. Two persons were injured. In earlier rioting, two persons were killed and at least 30 injured.

Vargas, the country's strongman for 19 years, chose yesterday to give up his presidency by suicide rather than force. He fired a bullet through his heart after 58 air force and army generals forced the 71-year-old political leader to resign.

This morning while Army troops stood by, thousands of Brazilians followed the body of Vargas from the presidential palace to the city's downtown airport. The plane took off for southern Brazil, where Vargas will be buried.

Afterward a crowd gathered in front of the Air Ministry. Air Force personnel and the crowd became involved in a dispute and troops were rushed to the scene. Shots were fired to restore order.

The troops also prevented the crowd from attacking an automobile carrying Air Force officers.

CLASHES WERE reported in other sections of the city. Three persons were killed and 30 injured yesterday in clashes in Brazil.

U. S. diplomatic buildings and firms, as well as newspapers which opposed Vargas, were major targets of the rioters.

Rioters burned the office of the Diarios Associados publishing and radio chain in Porto Alegre, on the Atlantic Coast, heavily damaged the U. S. consulates in Belo Horizonte and Porto Alegre, and hurled rocks through the windows of the heavily guarded U. S. Embassy in Rio.

Union Official Is Clubbed To Death

CLEVELAND (AP)—A club-wielding killer dragged a 36-year-old union official from his automobile last night and beat him to death a few houses away from his home.

The official was Raymond Weirouch, a vice president of the CIO United Auto Workers Local 515 and the union's chief steward at the Iron Fireman Stoker Co.

Police today were searching for the murderer, who fled in his car after a witness started toward the scene.

The witness was Walter Hahn, who gave this description of the slaying:

Weirouch's car sped into the street, stopped suddenly and started to back into a parking place. Another car stopped at the nearby corner and Weirouch's car backed into it.

The driver ran up, dragged Weirouch from his parked automobile and clubbed him to the ground.

The president of Local 515, H. L. Sorge, said Weirouch had been a good union man and well-liked, and that he doubted the slaying had any union connection.

Weirouch was married and the father of four children.

The second unit will boost the pay roll to about 2,000 persons, but it is not scheduled for completion until 1958.

of the announcement issued by Standard. Sharkey also said "there will be no change in the operations of the Crites Oil Company, since this organization has been handling Sohio products for a number of years." Crites assumed this meant that personnel of the stations, and bulk plant would remain virtually unchanged under the new ownership. Crites added he had already talked to all his employees and that "they knew what was coming." He estimated 16 persons have been employed by the Crites concern.

CRITES CONFIRMED that the agreement stipulates he will not enter into competition with Standard for a period of 10 years, but he declared:

"I wouldn't consider it anyway—otherwise why should we sell the business now? As a matter of fact I'm tired of the gasoline business." Crites recalled that his firm began operating here with construction of the Southland station in 1927, gradually branching out in the district to become one of the largest local trade groups. He insisted the sale of the firm did not indicate he was preparing to enter any new local trade field. He specifically denied that he has contemplated new investments in a shopping center. "I just want to rest," he laughed. "This offer just came along and it sounded good, and that's all there is to it. It came along while the (Route 23) bypass was being discussed, and all that—and well, it was just a good deal, so we took their offer."

CLEVELAND — Charges of corruption in labor unions will be aimed tomorrow at a closed hearing of the House anti-racketeering subcommittee.

A spokesman for Rep. George H. Bender of Cleveland, chairman of the subcommittee, said he could not discuss the nature of the material to be studied. Sixteen organizations and 14 persons have been subpoenaed to appear with "books and records."

The spokesman said it was the general practice of the group to hold executive sessions when receiving books and records. "We plan to hold open hearings in the near future," he added.

of the announcement issued by Standard.

Sharky also said "there will be no change in the operations of the Crites Oil Company, since this organization has been handling Sohio products for a number of years." Crites assumed this meant that personnel of the stations, and bulk plant would remain virtually unchanged under the new ownership.

Crites added he had already talked to all his employees and that "they knew what was coming." He estimated 16 persons have been employed by the Crites concern.

CRITES CONFIRMED that the agreement stipulates he will not enter into competition with Standard for a period of 10 years, but he declared:

"I wouldn't consider it anyway — otherwise why should we sell the business now? As a matter of fact I'm tired of the gasoline business."

Crites recalled that his firm began operating here with construction of the Southland station in 1927, gradually branching out in the district to become one of the largest local trade groups. He insisted the sale of the firm did not indicate he was preparing to enter any new local trade field. He specifically denied that he has contemplated new investments in a shopping center.

"I just want to rest," he laughed. "This offer just came along and it sounded good, and that's all there is to it. It came along while the (Route 23) bypass was being discussed, and all that — and well, it was just a good deal, so we took their offer."

Anti-Racketeering Probe Scheduled

CLEVELAND (AP) — Charges of corruption in labor unions will be aimed tomorrow at a closed hearing of the House anti-racketeering subcommittee.

A spokesman for Rep. George H. Bender of Cleveland, chairman of the subcommittee, said he could not discuss the nature of the material to be studied. Sixteen organizations and 14 persons have been subpoenaed to appear with "books and records."

The spokesman said it was the general practice of the group to hold executive sessions when receiving books and records. "We plan to hold open hearings in the near future," he added.

Ohio Democrats Optimistic On Poll Prospects

Party Kitty Fattened By Lush Dinners; Top Leaders Give Views

COLUMBUS, Ohio (P)—So many Ohioans want to attend a $100-a-plate Democratic dinner in Indianapolis next month it may take a special railroad car to haul them. That's the word from Democratic State Chairman Eugene H. Hanhart of Dover who is helping arrange the junket. He expects at least 25 or 30 to go. They will include Albert A. Horstman of Dayton and Mary E. McGowan of Akron, Ohio's national committee members.

The dinner will feature the party's Mid-West Regional meeting Sept. 17-18. Adlai E. Stevenson, 1952 presidential nominee, and possibly former President Harry S. Truman will be headline speakers. The meeting is designed to fatten the Democrats' campaign kitty and whip up fervor for the November election in which they hope to capture control of Congress.

Hanhart said a $50-a-plate dinner staged in Columbus June 10 by Ohio Democrats netted more than $18,000. The state committee split the proceeds with the national committee, keeping about $9,000 for campaigning.

Democratic National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell predicted at the Ohio dinner that Gov. Frank J. Lausche would win a fifth term. He also foresaw the election of Lausche's interim appointee to the U. S. Senate, Thomas A. Burke of Cleveland, to the last two years of the late Sen. Robert A. Taft's term.

Hanhart said he sees nothing to alter that prediction. He adds that prospects are bright for Democrats to pick up more congressional seats.

Six of Ohio's House members are Democrats. Another nominal Democrat is an Independent. The rest are Republicans.

Party leaders said some of the optimism stems from a decision of the central committee last May to expend party efforts and funds in behalf of all candidates for statewide offices. They have been pretty much on their own in recent campaigns, following Lausche's lead.

Hanhart said state headquarters this year will give them more help in literature and broadcast programs. He said a Columbus meeting for state candidates will be held as soon as printers get the literature in shape. Headquarters also will provide more help for non-incumbent congressional candidates, he added.

Party activities pick up this weekend in Ohio. Rep. Ed Edmondson of Muskogee, Okla., will address an 8th Congressional District rally in Kenton on Friday.

On Saturday, Sen. Paul H. Douglas of Illinois and Sen. Estes

Kefauver of Tennessee will headline a meeting in East Liverpool honoring Rep. Wayne L. Hays of Flushing, 18th district incumbent. Another speaker will be 19th district Rep. Michael J. Kirwan of Youngstown, head of the National Congressional Campaign Committee.

Young Democrats will hold an outing at Cedar Point on Lake Erie over the weekend.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, a member of the Army-McCarthy investigating committee, will speak at a rally in Jackson Sept. 14.

A week later, on the 21st, Sen. Olin D. Johnston of South Carolina will feature a 7th District rally in Springfield.

A keynote speaker for the state convention in Columbus Sept. 28 has yet to be announced.

Park Program To Help Fund Against Polio

Through an arrangement between leaders of the Pickaway County March of Dimes and the owners of Gold Cliff Park, 50 percent of the proceeds from a Skate-and-Swim Day at the park will go to the Emergency March Against Polio, a nationwide drive which ends this week.

The program at the park will be held Thursday.

Management of the park has stressed its willingness to cooperate with the campaign in view of the urgent needs of the polio fight, seriously threatened nationwide by lack of funds.

Many other sections of the state were unable to match Pickaway County's over-the-top enthusiasm for the March of Dimes early this year.

SWIMMING AT Gold Cliff will be from 1 to 9 p. m., and skating from 7:45 to 10:45 p. m. Regular prices will be charged. As an added feature of the program, a special skating exhibition will be presented by a group of professional skaters at 9 p. m.

State and regional skating champions will participate.

Britain Refuses To Release Pole

LONDON (P)—Britain today rejected Poland's demand for the return of a Polish sailor who stowed away on a freighter to escape his Communist homeland and was granted asylum here.

Eighty British police rescued the seaman, 24-year-old Antoni Klimowicz, from the Polish freighter Jaroslaw Dabrowski July 31. He hid on the ship when it left Poland. Crewmen caught him before he could escape in London and were hauling him back to his homeland.

The British note turned down Poland's demands for compensation for alleged damage resulting from detention of the ship and the police action. The British also denied Polish charges of police brutality.

Britain Facing Poor Harvests

LONDON (P)—Britain is facing the prospect of one of the worst harvests in years.

So much rain has poured on this island during the summer that the umbrella factories are far behind the demand.

Acre upon acre of green wheat is lying flat on the sodden earth with little or no hope of recovery. The canning industry has seen its soft fruit pounded until its losses are estimated in millions of dollars.

The strawberry crop was only two thirds of normal and the grain crop also is in bad shape.

In the counties of Kent, Berkshire, Sussex and Herefordshire there are reports of wheat sprouting as it lies flat on the wet earth before men and machines can get at it.

Ohio Democrats Optimistic On Poll Prospects

Party Kitty Fattened By Lush Dinners; Top Leaders Give Views

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—So many Ohioans want to attend a $100-a-plate Democratic dinner in Indianapolis next month it may take a special railroad car to haul them. That's the word from Democratic State Chairman Eugene H. Hanhart of Dover who is helping arrange the junket. He expects at least 25 or 30 to go. They will include Albert A. Horstman of Dayton and Mary E. McGowan of Akron, Ohio's national committee members.

The dinner will feature the party's Mid-West Regional meeting Sept. 17-18. Adlai E. Stevenson, 1952 presidential nominee, and possibly former President Harry S. Truman will be headline speakers. The meeting is designed to fatten the Democrats' campaign kitty and whip up fervor for the November election in which they hope to capture control of Congress.

Hanhart said a $50-a-plate dinner staged in Columbus June 10 by Ohio Democrats netted more than $18,000. The state committee split the proceeds with the national committee, keeping about $9,000 for campaigning.

Democratic National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell predicted at the Ohio dinner that Gov. Frank J. Lausche would win a fifth term. He also foresaw the election of Lausche's interim appointee to the U. S. Senate, Thomas A. Burke of Cleveland, to the last two years of the late Sen. Robert A. Taft's term.

Hanhart said he sees nothing to alter that prediction. He adds that prospects are bright for Democrats to pick up more congressional seats.

Six of Ohio's House members are Democrats. Another nominal Democrat is an Independent. The rest are Republicans.

Party leaders said some of the optimism stems from a decision of the central committee last May to expend party efforts and funds in behalf of all candidates for statewide offices. They have been pretty much on their own in recent campaigns, following Lausche's lead.

Hanhart said state headquarters this year will give them more help on literature and broadcast programs. He said a Columbus meeting for state candidates will be held as soon as printers get the literature in shape. Headquarters also will provide more help for non-incumbent congressional candidates, he added.

Party activities pick up this weekend in Ohio. Rep. Ed Edmondson of Muskogee, Okla., will address an 8th Congressional District rally in Kenton on Friday.

On Saturday, Sen. Paul H. Douglas of Illinois and Sen. Estes

Kefauver of Tennessee will headline a meeting in East Liverpool honoring Rep. Wayne L. Hays of Flushing, 18th district incumbent. Another speaker will be 19th district Rep. Michael J. Kirwan of Youngstown, head of the National Congressional Campaign Committee.

Young Democrats will hold an outing at Cedar Point on Lake Erie over the weekend.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, a member of the Army-McCarthy investigating committee, will speak at a rally in Jackson Sept. 14.

A week later, on the 21st, Sen. Olin D. Johnston of South Carolina will feature a 7th District rally in Springfield.

A keynote speaker for the state convention in Columbus Sept. 28 has yet to be announced.

Park Program To Help Fund Against Polio

Through an arrangement between leaders of the Pickaway County March of Dimes and the owners of Gold Cliff Park, 50 percent of the proceeds from a Skate-and-Swim Day at the park will go to the Emergency March Against Polio, a nationwide drive which ends this week.

The program at the park will be held Thursday.

Management of the park has stressed its willingness to cooperate with the campaign in view of the urgent needs of the polio fight, seriously threatened nationwide by lack of funds.

Many other sections of the state were unable to match Pickaway County's over-the-top enthusiasm for the March of Dimes early this year.

SWIMMING AT Gold Cliff will be from 1 to 9 p. m., and skating from 7:45 to 10:45 p. m. Regular prices will be charged. As an added feature of the program, a special skating exhibition will be presented by a group of professional skaters at 9 p. m.

State and regional skating champions will participate.

Britain Refuses To Release Pole

LONDON (AP)—Britain today rejected Poland's demand for the return of a Polish sailor who stowed away on a freighter to escape his Communist homeland and was granted asylum here.

Eighty British police rescued the seaman, 24-year-old Antoni Klimowicz, from the Polish freighter Jaroslaw Dabrowski July 31. He hid on the ship when it left Poland. Crewmen caught him before he could escape in London and were hauling him back to his homeland.

The British note turned down Poland's demands for compensation for alleged damage resulting from detention of the ship and the police action. The British also denied Polish charges of police brutality.

Britain Facing Poor Harvests

LONDON (AP)—Britain is facing the prospect of one of the worst harvests in years.

So much rain has poured on this island during the summer that the umbrella factories are far behind the demand.

Acre upon acre of green wheat is lying flat on the sodden earth with little or no hope of recovery. The canning industry has seen its soft fruit pounded until its losses are estimated in millions of dollars.

The strawberry crop was only two thirds of normal and the grain crop also is in bad shape.

In the counties of Kent, Berkshire, Sussex and Herefordshire there are reports of wheat sprouting as it lies flat on the wet earth before men and machines can get at it.

New Republican Farm Plan Drawing Continuous Study

Editor's Note: Following is another in a series of articles evaluating the work accomplished by the just-adjourned Congress.

By OVID A. Martin
WASHINGTON (AP)—The Republican-controlled 83rd Congress finds itself in about the same controversial spot on farm legislation as did the 80th Congress, the last time the GOP was in the driver's seat.

Democrats are sizing up a new farm program passed by the present Congress as a major issue in the fall's congressional election. They contend the program will hurt farmers.

In 1948, Democrats fired a similar charge against a GOP Congress. President Truman beat out Gov. Thomas E. Dewey for the presidency and Democrats regained control of Congress. The farm vote was credited with being a major factor.

But Republican leaders predict the comparison will end there. They express confidence that farmers will approve Congress' recent action in setting up a system of flexible farm price supports to supplant war-born high, rigid price floors.

In 1948, the issue centered largely around Congress' stripping the agriculture department of authority to provide storage facilities for farmers' surplus crops. Farm prices tumbled and Democrats said refusal of the GOP lawmakers to allow the government to augment commercial storage was to blame. They said lack of storage made price supports inoperative.

Seeking ouster of GOP congressmen from farm states, Democrats are predicting that the new support system—passed by a somewhat reluctant Congress at insistence of President Eisenhower—will bring on lower farm prices, a reduced farm income and possible and agricultural depression.

But Eisenhower, his secretary of agriculture, Ezra Taft Benson, and other Administration lieutenants stand ready to defend the new legislation.

The flexible system provides a sliding scale of supports for the basic crops—wheat, cotton, corn, rice and peanuts—ranging from 82½ to 90 per cent of parity for 1955 and 75 to 90 percent thereafter. Parity is a price declared by law to be fair to farmers in relation to prices they must pay.

Present supports are at 90 per cent of parity for the basic crops.

The theory of the variable system is that supports should be high in times of shortages to encourage increased production and lower in times of surpluses to discourage production and to encourage greater consumption.

The Administration, in pushing flexible floors through Congress, argued that the mandatory high supports, first enacted during the war to spur increased output, have been working to the detriment of farmers because they encouraged overproduction and the buildup of price-depressing surpluses totaling nearly ½ billion dollars in the hands of the government.

Flexible floors, the GOP leaders contend, will help farmers adjust their production pattern to postwar demands and, in time, regain more favorable prices in the market places as output is reduced to buyers' demands.

The new program does not have the full support of the GOP members of Congress. A majority of "farm bloc" Republicans sought extension of the 90 per cent supports. Some seeking re-election in November are promising to work for repeal of the flexible system at the next session of Congress.

Democrats themselves are not lined up solidly against the new farm program. Several party leaders in Congress, including Sen. Anderson (D-NM), a former secretary of agriculture, argued for flexible supports.

Nevertheless, the Democrats plan to launch a broad attack on the new farm legislation at a Midwestern Farm Conference at Sioux Falls, S. D. Saturday, with Adlai Stevenson, the party's 1952 standard bearer, the main speaker.

Strangely enough, the flexible support plan was first written into law by the Republican 80th Congress, but was not an issue in the presidential election of 1948. Both parties endorsed it, but it was never allowed to go into effect because Congress kept extending the 90 per cent rate.

Less controversy appears to center on other legislation affecting farmers.

Generally approved were Administration proposals to dispose and set aside big chunks of the huge farm surpluses, in order to minimize their depressing effects on market prices.

One act along this line authorized the President to sell up to 700 million dollars worth of farm surpluses for foreign currencies which would in turn be used to finance U. S. military and other projects abroad. It also authorized the chief executive to donate 300 million dollars worth of the surplus for relief use abroad.

Congress also authorized the Administration to set aside up to 2½ billion dollars worth of the surpluses for such non-commercial uses as foreign aid programs, barter for strategic materials, foreign and domestic relief, national stockpiling and research.

Of special importance was a provision that the set-aside crops were not to be considered in setting price supports under the sliding scale. Because of this, price floors will average higher for the next few years than they otherwise would have.

The GOP will go before farmer voters with an argument that Congress passed legislation that will ease a scheduled shift from an old to a new, "modern" formula for determining parity prices for corn, wheat, cotton, and peanuts. A measure passed in 1948 set up the new formula, but provided that it should not go into effect on some crops until 1956.

On the basis of present price relationships, the new formula would cut the parity price of wheat from $2.50 to $2.11 a bushel, corn from $1.82 to $1.60, cotton from $3.09 to $3.29 cents a pound and peanuts from 13.6 to 10.8 cents a pound.

But under the new farm program, the change to the new parity will be limited to 5 per cent a year, beginning Jan. 1, 1956.

Not without political implications was Congress' passage at Eisenhower's request, of legislation authorizing use of production payments to support income of wool producers. The government would pay growers to make up their deficit when wool prices failed to measure up to the support level, but the wool itself would sell at the free market rate. Heretofore, wool has been supported by means of government purchases and loans.

When use of production payments for support purposes was first advocated by former Secretary of Agriculture Brannan in 1948, Republicans were loud in criticism.

The last session of Congress voted more money for federal subsidies to farmers for carrying out government - approved soil and water conservation practices—240 million dollars against 190 millions last year.

In this connection, the new tax law enacted by Congress gave farmers a break on money spent for conservation purposes. Twenty-five per cent of such expenditures may be deducted annually in figuring a farmer's taxable income. Up until now, such expenditures were not deductible, except as figuring capital gains under a land sale.

The tax law also removed the tax on proceeds from the sale of cattle when the sale is for disease, provided the proceeds are re-invested in cattle within one year after the close of the taxable year. The revenue act also provided for a more rapid writeoff of the cost of new depreciable farm assets, such as machinery and equipment.

Under a new social security measure, Congress extended old age and survivor insurance benefits to 3,500,000 farm operators and to 2,500,000 additional farm workers.

This extension to farm operators was somewhat provisional, however, because it is not scheduled to go into effect until April 1, 1956. Lawmakers said this delay in the effective date was made to give farmers a chance to say in the meantime whether they wanted to be covered. There was much argument in Congress that farm operators do not want to go under social security.

Heretofore, farm employers were required to report, for old age pension coverage, only those workers to whom they paid at least $200 a year. Now those who earn at least $100 must be reported.

Other measures passed by the 83rd Congress affecting farmers included:

Increase from 6½ billion dollars to 10 billions in funds of the agriculture department's Commodity Credit Corp. for price support financing. Without this increase, the department would have been without money to support this year's crops.

Transfer of agriculture attaches

in foreign countries from the state department to the agriculture department. This shift was made to help in efforts of the latter agency to expand farm markets abroad.

You probably take tile for granted. But in grandpa's time, tile was costly—seen only in mansions and public buildings. Now, thanks to mass production, the most modest new home usually boasts tile in the kitchen and bathroom. The government would pay growers to make up their deficit when wool prices failed to measure up to the support level, but the wool itself would sell at the free market rate. Heretofore, wool has been supported by means of government purchases and loans.

When use of production payments for support purposes was first advocated by former Secretary of Agriculture Brannan in 1949, Republicans were loud in criticism.

The last session of Congress voted more money for federal subsidies to farmers for carrying out government - approved soil and water conservation practices—240 million dollars against 190 millions last year.

In this connection, the new tax law enacted by Congress gave farmers a break on money spent for conservation purposes. Twenty-five per cent of such expenditures may be deducted annually in figuring a farmer's taxable income. Up until now, such expenditures were not deductible, except as figuring capital gains under a land sale.

The tax law also removed the tax on proceeds from the sale of cattle when the sale is force by disease, provided the proceeds are re-invested in cattle within one year after the close of the taxable year. The revenue act also provided for a more rapid writeoff of the cost of new depreciable farm assets, such as machinery and equipment.

Under a new social security measure, Congress extended old age and survivor insurance benefits to 3,500,000 farm operators and to 2,500,000 additional farm workers.

This extension to farm operators was somewhat provisional, however, because it is not scheduled to go into effect until April 1, 1956. Lawmakers said this delay in the effective date was made to give farmers a chance to say in the meantime whether they wanted to be covered. There was much argument in Congress that farm operators do not want to go under social security.

Heretofore, farm employers were required to report, for old age pension coverage, only those workers to whom they paid at least $200 a year. Now those who earn at least $100 must be reported.

Other measures passed by the 83rd Congress affecting farmers included:

Increase from 6½ billion dollars to 10 billions in funds of the agriculture department's Commodity Credit Corp. for price support financing. Without this increase, the department would have been without money to support this year's crops.

Transfer of agriculture attachées

in foreign countries from the state department to the agriculture department. This shift was made to help in efforts of the latter agency to expand farm markets abroad.

Why didn't Grandpa have a tile bath?

TEXAS EASTERN SERVES THE COMPANIES THAT SERVE YOU

Thirty hours of baking at 2000° F. transforms clay into tile. Color glazes are then baked on in similar natural gas-fired kilns. Gas for the Atlantic Tile Manufacturing Co., is supplied by New Jersey Natural Gas Company, a customer of Texas Eastern.

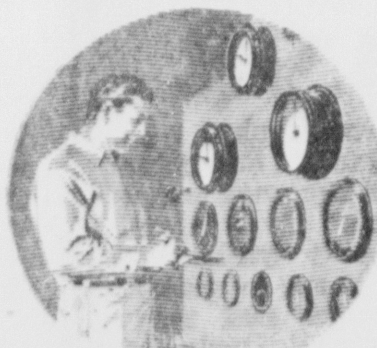

You probably take tile for granted. But in grandpa's time, tile was costly—seen only in mansions and public buildings. Now, thanks to mass production, the most modest new home usually boasts tile in the kitchen and bathroom. To mass produce its high quality product, Atlantic Tile requires a source of heat that's clean, abundant and economical. That's why all of Atlantic's kilns are fired with natural gas.

WASHINGTON (P) — The Communist party in this country is on a rocky road now, but its fate is still uncertain even though President Eisenhower yesterday signed the act outlawing it.

That's because of the court fights which are now taking place and still lie ahead. Two questions may stick in people's minds because of the confusing way Congress passed this legislation in its closing days this month.

Does this new law mean the Communist party must now cease to exist? And does it make it a crime now to be a Communist or a member of the Communist party? The answer to both questions is no.

The law doesn't say the party must pass out of existence, although in time that may be the effect. It says the party is now deprived of rights, privileges and immunities which other organizations enjoy.

For example, it cannot under this law have candidates on a ballot in federal elections for Congress or the presidency. But it's up to the states whether they keep the party off their ballots in state elections.

Puzziness begins at this point on what else the party loses. The law itself doesn't say specifically. Government lawyers are still studying the possibilities the law provides for action against the party.

The first government move, when its lawyers have made up their minds, may be sudden. The party no doubt will fight in court then to have the new law thrown out as unconstitutional.

The party is already in court trying to get the McCarran Internal Security Act of 1950 declared unconstitutional. Under that act the government found the party to be a Moscow agent or "Communist action" group.

When such a finding is made, according to the McCarran Act, the party's officers and members must register with the government. They were ordered to. Instead, as expected, the party began its court fight on the McCarran Act.

The Supreme Court by next spring may give its verdict on whether the party members must register or the McCarran Act is unconstitutional. Party leaders have indicated they would never register, no matter what the verdict is.

If the court rules against them, they can be jailed and fined for not registering. Their refusal in that event would actually kill the party. Therefore by their refusal they themselves, not a law, would end the party.

If that fate overtook the party while it was fighting the law which Eisenhower signed yesterday, the second fight would end in mid-air. But there is something else the Communists may try:

They may inject the new law into their present fight on the McCarran Act, arguing that certain language in the new law fortifies their contention that the McCarran Act is unconstitutional.

As for the individual Communist, the new law doesn't say his membership in the party is a crime but that he must — if the government can prove his conspiratorial nature — register as a member of a "Communist action" organization.

Right there the new law overlaps with the McCarran Act's registration requirements and may confuse the court struggle. But this doesn't mean the government in the meantime is helpless to act against individual Communists.

It can and is going to. There is another law, called the Smith Act of 1940, under which the government can prosecute anyone who is a member of an organization having the purpose of overthrowing the government by force. The Smith Act does not mention the Communist party by name.

In such a prosecution the government would have to prove a defendant had knowledge of the organization's purpose. It will start its first trial under this section of the act this fall. The defendant will be Claude Lightfoot, a Communist leader of Chicago.

The party can be expected to fight this case — if Lightfoot is convicted — all the way up to the Supreme Court too, on constitutional grounds. The court has never ruled since it never had a test, on this section of the act.

But it has upheld the constitutionality of another section of the act which the government used to convict 81 Communists on different grounds: conspiracy to teach forcible overthrow of the government. Under that section the government tried Communists in groups, not singly.

Hungarian Bishop Outlines Christianity In Red Regime

EVANSTON, Ill. (P) — Hungarian Bishop John Peter says he is not a Communist, not a Soviet "informer" and that Christians are free to criticize the Red government in his country.

The bishop, target of various charges since he came here to attend the World Council of Churches Assembly, made his terse comments in written replies to 32 questions from newsmen.

Speaking for a five-man delegation representing the Lutherans and Reformed Churches of Hungary, he said:

"Those authorities which released such statements have false information."

The handsome, gray-haired bishop, admitted to this country under a visa restricting him to assembly activities, prefaced his answers with the remark he did not come here to "influence political ideas."

"My only intention was and remains to strengthen the contacts and fellowship of the Hungarian churches with the World Council and its member churches."

But he said that since the state department had released allegations about him, and ruled that his visa prohibited him from holding a news conference, he decided to answer the written queries.

He defended the Communist regime as providing an atmosphere in which Christianity can flourish, and said he felt Americans "fail to get a true picture" of conditions in his country.

He said it "is not true" that he has informed on other clergymen, resulting in their prosecution. To state department reports that it had information he may have done so, Peter said:

NIAGARA WILL ENDURE

MANY PERSONS residing in all parts of the country who have seen Niagara Falls may have been misled by recent news stories of the 185,000 tons of rock and dirt which became undermined and fell 160 feet into the chasm below. This natural wonder is not in danger of being destroyed by erosion.

The distance between the site of the falls and Lake Erie is 16 miles. Erosion is eating away at the falls at the rate of a mile every 1,370 years. Conceivably the falls and the lake could merge 20,000 years hence.

Conservationists of both the United States and Canada have taken the falls in charge. A treaty was signed in 1950 providing for efforts to minimize erosion. Enough of the water going over the falls will be withdrawn for hydroelectric power to take much of the strain off the lip of the falls without damaging their natural beauty. Indeed, the beauty of the falls is to be enhanced.

Gaps in crests left by old falls of rock will be filled in. When the work is completed about 1958, falling water will spread in a solid curtain over both the Horseshoe and the American falls.

As long as anyone can foresee, thousands of newlyweds will still be going to Niagara Falls to view one of the greatest spectacles on earth.

UP TO DEPARTMENTS

REP. ED REES of the House Civil Service Committee is on the warpath against payroll waste. He has written Philip Young, chairman of the Civil Service Commission, recommending that all agencies and departments of government be required to conduct periodic surveys of their personnel operations.

The Kansas legislator cited several aspects of federal personnel management worth looking into. He urges highest priority for matters of proper placement, official travel and other practices. For example, Congressman Rees tells of a case where a top official in the Bureau of Reclamation took an extended five-month field tour which, coincidentally, permitted him to establish legal residence for divorce proceedings, and of another where a highly paid engineer was put to work in a mailing room.

Civil Service procedures, of course, call for periodic independent audits of personnel activities, but if the described abuses prevail these outside checkups are not successfully covering the ground. Representative Rees' suggestion would place the burden on the management of the departments and agencies themselves.

It had to come that at some point a conflict would arise between an Executive Agreement, concerning the United States and some foreign countries, and Congress. The Bricker Amendment was designed to prevent such incidents from occurring by requiring the constitutional confirmation of all such agreements which are really treaties in disguise. It will be recalled that the Bricker Amendment failed by one vote, that of Senator Homer Ferguson of Michigan who changed his mind.

What is involved is a minor commodity in international trade, namely, hardboard, or as it is often called in this country, wall-board. Congress is interested in raising the rate without considering G.A.T.T. (General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade) which is an omnibus agreement worked out by an international body designed to make foreign trade easier, particularly to the United States.

We are told that Canadian trade officials are upset because the House of Representatives actually passed a rise in the tariff on hardboard. The Canadians regarded such an increase as a violation of G.A.T.T. Those who favor the increase ask what is G.A.T.T. and do we have a treaty about it.

Should the increase go through, this might be a case for the Supreme Court, American dealers in the Canadian product coming into our courts to raise the issue of the binding force of an Executive Agreement dealing with a matter that more correctly should be left to Congress, or arranged by a treaty confirmed by the Senate. Then we shall have all the arguments, pro and con, which arose over the Bricker Amendment.

Hardboard is a paper product used in this country as a wall board. The Swedes and Canadians do a good business in this product in the United States. It is one of Canada's numerous paper products which maintain the Canadian economy, largely by being sold in the United States at a high price.

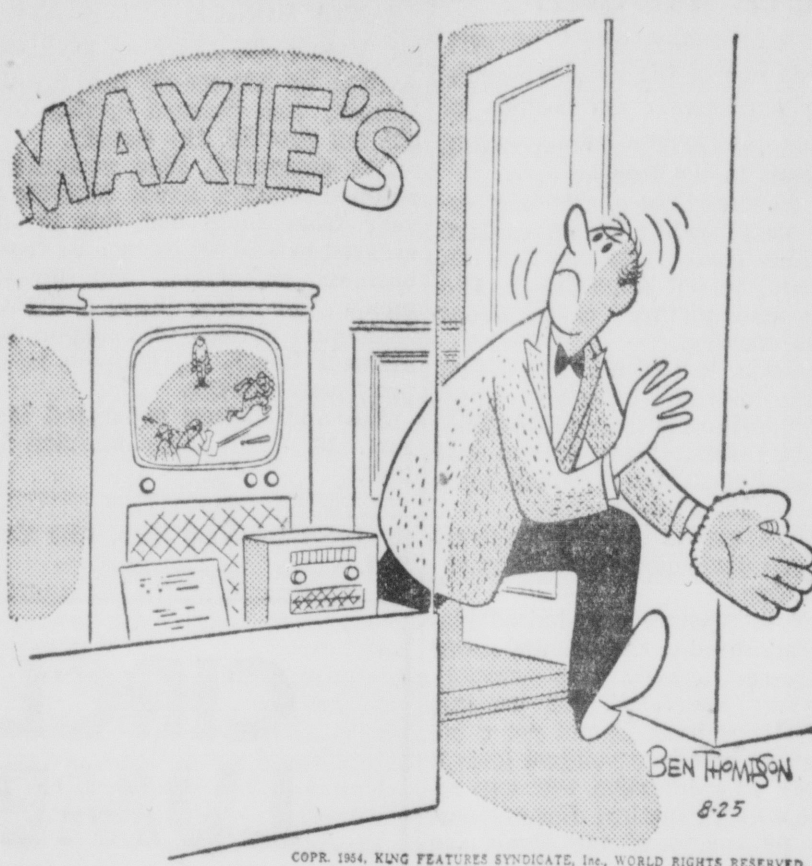

To accommodate Canada but with little regard for the fact, hardboard comes into the United States as wood, which it is not, and not as paper which it is. As wood, hardboard is dutiable at the rate of 7-1/2 to 15 percent ad valorem; as paper, it would be dutiable at a straight 16 2-3 percent. The Canadians, being good business men, have taken advantage of the concession made at the G.A.T.T. conference. The G.A.T.T. agreements are based on the 1934 Trade Agreements Act which has been renewed for another year.

Now along comes James B. Utt, a Congressman from California, who puts through a bill in the House of Representatives reclassifying hardboard from wood to paper. In other words, Utt's bill tells the truth about a commodity which, for some diplomatic reason, the United States enters into a collusion with Sweden and Canada to classify incorrectly. The Utt bill passed the House by a vote of 235 to 109, which in this almost evenly divided House is a good majority. The Canadians are sore because the American product would then be priced more competitively.

Glandular Swelling

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

SWOLLEN glands are symptoms that call attention to many different diseases. Enlargement of the lymph glands in the neck, or in any part of the body, has a definite meaning, whether the enlargement be large or small.

Lymph glands, or nodes, as they are known medically, are specialized bits of tissue containing a special type of cell. Their function is to intercept the flow of lymph in the tissues and trap the foreign material it contains.

In a Child

There is nothing unusual about swollen glands in the neck of a child with German measles, a cold, sore throat, or especially tonsillitis. The virus disease, infectious mononucleosis, which causes severe fatigue and lassitude and is often found in children, is one of the common causes of lymph gland enlargement. Chronic tuberculosis or syphilis may be responsible.

Curable Types

These are usually the curable types of lymph node enlargement.

Proper treatment of the specific infection or cause will usually eliminate the condition.

When enlargement of the lymph nodes occurs without pain or tenderness, it is often a grave symptom. The swelling is then often due to some type of tumor formation in the lymph nodes, or to some blood disease such as leukemia.

Any person with an enlargement of the lymph glands that persists for three weeks or more should have a complete examination in order to determine the reason for it. Whatever the cause, lymph gland enlargement signifies disease, and the person with this condition should consult his physician about it without delay.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Mr. M.: Are air conditioners of any benefit to sufferers of hay fever?

Answer: In many instances, there is much relief given by the use of an air conditioner, since the person suffering from hay fever then inhales filtered air which is relatively pollen-free.

The National Geographic says a gold fish will lose its mind in a bowl by itself. Now you know what a strain the presidency is.

Even a fish likes company. Even if it's a fish.

That shows you the difference between us. A fish can't get along with only humans for company, but a lot of humans can get along with only fish.

Another difference is that going around in circles doesn't seem to bother gold fish. They just never expect to get anywhere.

Humans have ambition. That's the reason so many more of them get caught.

Fish are satisfied to live on a low scale. Probably that's why they're called poor fish.

Things are diametrically opposite between a fish in a bowl and a person in a house. Ever hear of a fish going housing?

CHAPTER TWENTY

WHEN we went aboard the Dixie Dandy, Russell wanted to stop at his cabin, so we parted and I went on to the dining saloon to join the other passengers in time for lunch. My entrance caused a minor sensation.

I looked first for Ellen but she hadn't come in yet. Everyone was goggling at me and mouths opened as if I'd returned from the dead. The captain was almost frightened, I thought.

Mr. Ed Boltinck glared at me as though I'd made him lose a bet and he was disgusted with me. Doc Riggs jumped up nervously, came around the table and pounded on my back, as high up as he could reach. The John Carlton Buttrams used up some of their limited energy in nodding violently at me. And the Rev. Dr. Dunbar stood up and smiled a welcome. Three pretty girls I didn't know just giggled and whispered to each other.

I squirmed away from Doc's hand. "Stop thumping me," I growled.

"Welcome home, wanderer," he yelled. "Returned from the vasty deep." He pulled out a chair and pushed me into it.

I was compelled to repeat several times that I'd merely missed my boat at Paducah. Doc had a few phoney explanations for my tardiness. The waiter brought me a plate of tomato soup as dark as mahogany and I spooned into it, letting most of the silly commentary pass without answer.

Mr. Ed Boltinck said to me, "The captain told us you had been taken ashore under arrest."

I smiled at him, glanced at the scared, ashen face of Capt. Jellicoe and said: "I've made arrangements to sue him."

Capt. Jellicoe put his cup in its saucer with a clatter, threw his napkin beside it, and pushed his chair back. I poked a curious finger at an airman envelope given to me by Russell, noticed its Philadelphia postmark and glanced up in time to see Jellicoe start for me, his wide face suffused with angry blood. Russell's hand clamped hard around the captain's arm.

"A joke, captain," Russell said mildly. "Mr. Wilde knows you merely made an honest mistake."

Capt. Jellicoe apologized and he choked his way through a clumsy phrase. He bowed very stiffly and stalked away from the table.

"Are we to assume, then," Doc asked blandly, "that you were not incarcerated?"

"Let it go, Doc," I said. "It's a poor joke. Don't ride it to death. Where's Miss Pomeroy?"

"Slaving," Doc said with an impish grin. "Odious company she is when she works. Nothing but light meters, cameras, flashbulbs and strange cabalistic mutterings about angles and density and such. There's nothing worse than a working woman. Takes the heart out of a man."

Most of the people at the table finished their food and began to drift away, slightly irritated that neither Russell nor I had done anything worth comment. Three uniformed stewards waited outside in the bar to conduct the passengers on tours of the old houses of Natchez and most of them wanted to get off in the first load. Boltinck dismissed his missus contemptuously when she left us.

He brought out his gold cigar case, selected an oily dark cigar and made a small ceremony of piercing it and getting it alight. "Old houses!" he snorted. "Get that woman anything, any single thing that isn't brand spanking new this year and she'll toss it right back in your face. But she's nuts about old houses. Now why is that? She'll go miles to poke inside some old kitchen and she'll coo and gurgie about some rusty iron pot that she herself wouldn't give housework to. Now why is that?"

Doc Riggs took himself off to look for Ellen and remind her of their date to tour Natchez. Boltinck got up when Doc left. He touched Russell's shoulder and nodded to me. "Nasty business," he said briefly, obviously trying to display a neighborly concern. "Glad to see you're getting over it. Some price to pay for razor blades, eh?"

Russell said quietly to me, "By the way, Wilde, I wish you wouldn't mention anything about my family connection with the company." He got up. "See you later, Wilde. I've got work to do."

I watched him go out of the saloon and wondered why he wanted to make sure I said nothing about the fact that his mother owned the Delta Line. Then I forgot about it when I saw Ellen coming swiftly toward me.

"Carney!" She bent over my chair before I could get up. "Oh, Carney! Doc Riggs told me you were back. What happened? That odious captain said you..."

"He won't be saying anything more," I said grimly. "Nothing happened. A local FBI man wanted to know what I knew about Stewart. Our talk lasted too long and I missed the boat. Russell and I took a train to meet here. And that's all." Then I looked at her and said: "You're beautiful. Did you miss me? Sit down and have some lunch."

"I ate in the crew's mess," Ellen said absently. "I was taking pictures down below." She sat in the chair at my right and held my left hand warmly in both palms. "Don't do that again," she said softly. "I was frightened."

"Never again," I said fervently. "I must go soon," she said after a silent moment. "The lovely mansions of Natchez. Come with me? I have to take pictures but not for long."

"I don't think so," I said. "It's time I did some sitting and thinking. Every time I've tried lately, I've gone to sleep."

"Well, go have a lovely nap, darling," Ellen whispered. "I'll only be a couple of hours, I think."

I walked with her to the main staircase and stayed there as she ran down to join Doc Riggs on the gangplank. She was wearing a dark plaid suit, a regimental plaid in solid blue and green with cross bars of yellow and white. Very subdued, but somehow gay. It was nice to see on her, especially, the wide swirling skirt that whipped as she moved. She had Doc Riggs loaded down with half a dozen assorted leather cases, but he looked happy. And Ellen, I thought, looked magnificent. I went up to my room and my feet were dragging.

The night-time curtains in my room were still drawn tightly and I didn't touch them. I dropped my heavy coat on the bed, pulled a deep chair close to the smoking stand and sat there, twisting slightly so that my left arm rested against the padded chair.

I took out every fact that I knew about Stewart and went over them all in my mind, taking my time and making sure I had everything in balance, not shaded by the way I felt, but remembering events just the way they happened.

Stewart was an amateur, a one-time snatcher. But the getaway was slick, too slick. He must have had help.

What did I have? A helper who greased Stewart's getaway, planned the details that would take Stewart safely out of the country. Next, an unknown on the Dixie Dandy who had clouted Russell and also had probably left a warning for me to get off the boat. And the hijacker, one or more.

I tried to relax. If I carried this on much further, I'd have every one of the 200 passengers on the boat involved somehow with Stewart. I smoked a cigarette through and then went back to it.

None of my outline was too far-fetched. Maybe one or two of the three unknown people would overlap. Maybe the helper was the same person who clouted Russell. In fact, there was no reason why he couldn't also be the hijacker, if there was one. So it could still be just one man, after all, though that didn't seem too likely.

Tomorrow we would be in New Orleans. And Capt. Grodnik would be there, surrounded by the FBI and the local cops. If I had something to offer them, maybe I could keep my foot inside the door, have a part at least in tripping up Stewart. That would be good enough for me. But with no ideas, with nothing to contribute, I'd be frozen out and that would be the end of Carney Wilde, Inc. I had to have something no one else had before we came to the New Orleans landing.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

news behind the news

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower aggravated the Democrats' November fears with his recent economic analysis, boasting that the Administration had checked the 1953-54 slump and predicting that 1954 would turn out to be the second most prosperous and productive year in history. If Ike is correct, and there are those who disagree, the GOP believes it has a good chance to retain control of both House and Senate.

Although they will not admit it for publication, minority spokesmen on Capitol Hill declare ruefully that, if the congressional elections had been held six months ago, the Democrats would have swept both branches of the legislative body.

Unemployment was then at its peak, and in many areas there was the threat of more factory closings. Inventories were high, and the channels of production and distribution were choked with surpluses of goods.

The Senate and House liberals — Humphrey of Minnesota and Lehman of New York in the upper chamber, Patman of Texas and Cooper of Tennessee in the House — were taunting the Republicans on their policy of "hard money," which they blamed for the "recession."

Suddenly, the Treasury and the Federal Reserve, more responsive to new conditions than those agencies have been in the past, reversed their program, and eased the money and credit situation.

GAINS

Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey and Commerce Secretary Sinclair Weeks insist that the last quarter of 1954 will show even greater economic gains.

They do not seem to be bliffling, for they have made these predictions in recent on-the-record "bull" sessions with newspaper correspondents at Washington. On Election Day, they forecast, the economic atmosphere will have a Republican tinge.

If so, the Democrats admit sadly, the GOP may increase its current House margin of three to 20 or 30. And the Democrats' one-man majority in the Senate may disappear. For both Republicans and Democrats agree that the dominant issue in November will be the nation's economic health, not McCarthyism, or any other ism nor Korea, nor Indochina. It will be a bread-and-butter vote.

PLANS — To retrieve what seem like sagging political fortunes, the Democrats plan to put on a political show in November that would be worthy of a contest for the presidency. In the hope of regaining the White House in 1956, they are determined to rebuke President Eisenhower and the first Republican Administration in 20 years.

Every prominent Democrat will be drafted for the stump — Adlai E. Stevenson, former President Harry S. Truman, the members of the Roosevelt family not engaged in election contests (Possibly Rep. Franklin D. Jr. in New York and James in California), Truman Roosevelt Cabinet servants, Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas, and any other Democrat with crowd appeal.

IMPORTANT — The Republicans will match this output and effort. Ike has long since abandoned his nonpolitical role, and will deliver several major speeches via television, and a few in person in key areas.

Now that he has been rescued from the Roosevelt-Michelson doghouse, Herbert Hoover may pitch into the fight. Speaker Joseph W. Martin Jr., Vice-President Richard M. Nixon and other congressional bigwigs will tour the hustings.

In short, both Democrats and Republicans regard the November off-year struggle as the most important in many years, for it may furnish a forecast of the presidential result in 1956.

TRUMP — President Eisenhower has told friends that nothing has heartened and encouraged him so much as the White House victory in the struggle over farm price supports. Although Congress did not agree to the Eisenhower-Benson request for a 75 per cent parity minimum, Ike regards the compromise as his greatest triumph. He was fighting a powerful bipartisan bloc.

But Ike's real pleasure comes from the fact that he stood behind Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson, the Utah Mormon, when so many political and agricultural interests, all Republican, were demanding Benson's scalp. There were many columnists, but not this one, who wrote that Benson would be asked to resign.

On the contrary, Ike lists the strong men of his Cabinet in this order — Humphrey, Benson, Wilson.

Congress is interested in raising the rate without considering G.A.T.T. (General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade) which is an omnibus agreement worked out by an international body designed to make foreign trade easier, particularly to the United States.

We are told that Canadian trade officials are upset because the House of Representatives actually passed a rise in the tariff on hardboard. The Canadians regarded such an increase as a violation of G.A.T.T. Those who favor the increase ask what is G.A.T.T. and do we have a treaty about it.

Should the increase go through, this might be a case for the Supreme Court, American dealers in the Canadian product coming into our courts to raise the issue of the binding force of an Executive Agreement dealing with a matter that more correctly should be left to Congress, or arranged by a treaty confirmed by the Senate. Then we shall have all the arguments, pro and con, which arose over the Bricker Amendment.

Hardboard is a paper product used in this country as a wall board. The Swedes and Canadians do a good business in this product in the United States. It is one of Canada's numerous paper products which maintain the Canadian economy, largely by being sold in the United States at a high price.

To accommodate Canada but with little regard for the fact, hardboard comes into the United States as wood, which it is not, and not as paper which it is. As wood, hardboard is dutiable at the rate of 7-1/2 to 15 percent ad valorem; as paper, it would be dutiable at a straight 16-2-3 percent. The Canadians, being good business men, have taken advantage of the concession made at the G.A.T.T. conference. The G.A.T.T. agreements are based on the 1934 Trade Agreements Act which has been renewed for another year.

Now along comes James B. Utt, a Congressman from California, who puts through a bill in the House of Representatives reclassifying hardboard from wood to paper. In other words, Utt's bill tells the truth about a commodity which, for some diplomatic reason, the United States enters into a collusion with Sweden and Canada to classify incorrectly. The Utt bill passed the House by a vote of 235 to 109, which in this almost evenly divided House is a good majority. The Canadians are sore because the American product would then be priced more competitively.

Glandular Swelling

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

SWOLLEN glands are symptoms that call attention to many different diseases. Enlargement of the lymph glands in the neck, or in any part of the body, has a definite meaning, whether the enlargement be large or small.

Lymph glands, or nodes, as they are known medically, are specialized bits of tissue containing a special type of cell. Their function is to intercept the flow of lymph in the tissues and trap the foreign material it contains.

In a Child

There is nothing unusual about swollen glands in the neck of a child with German measles, a cold, sore throat, or especially tonsillitis. The virus disease, infectious mononucleosis, which causes severe fatigue and lassitude and is often found in children, is one of the common causes of lymph gland enlargement. Chronic tuberculosis or syphilis may be responsible.

Curable Types

These are usually the curable types of lymph node enlargement.

Proper treatment of the specific infection or cause will usually eliminate the condition.

When enlargement of the lymph nodes occurs without pain or tenderness, it is often a grave symptom. The swelling is then often due to some type of tumor formation in the lymph nodes, or to some blood disease such as leukemia.

Any person with an enlargement of the lymph glands that persists for three weeks or more should have a complete examination in order to determine the reason for it. Whatever the cause, lymph gland enlargement signifies disease, and the person with this condition should consult his physician about it without delay.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Mr. M.: Are air conditioners of any benefit to sufferers of hay fever?

Answer: In many instances, there is much relief given by the use of an air conditioner, since the person suffering from hay fever then inhales filtered air which is relatively pollen-free.

The National Geographic says a gold fish will lose its mind in a bowl by itself. Now you know what a strain the presidency is.

Even a fish likes company. Even if it's a fish.

That shows you the difference between a fish and a man. A fish can't get along with only humans for company, but a lot of humans can get along with only fish.

Another difference is that going around in circles doesn't seem to bother gold fish. They just never expect to get anyplace.

Humans have ambition. That's the reason so many more of them get caught.

Fish are satisfied to live on a low scale. Probably that's why they're called poor fish.

Things are diametrically opposite between a fish in a bowl and a person in a house. Ever hear of a fish going housing?

CHAPTER TWENTY

WHEN we went aboard the Dixie Dandy, Russell wanted to stop at his cabin, so we parted and I went on into the dining saloon to join the other passengers in time for lunch. My entrance caused a minor sensation.

I looked first for Ellen but she hadn't come in yet. Everyone was giggling at me and mouths opened as if I'd returned from the dead. The captain was almost frightened, I thought.

Mr. Ed Boltinck glared at me as though I'd made him lose a bet and he was disgusted with me. Doc Riggs jumped up nervously, came around the table and pounded on my back, as high up as he could reach. The John Carlton Buttrams used up some of their limited energy in nodding violently at me. And the Rev. Dr. Dunbar stood up and smiled a welcome. Three pretty girls I didn't know just giggled and whispered to each other.

I squirmed away from Doc's hand. "Stop thumping me," I growled.

"Welcome home, wanderer," he yelled. "Returned from the vasty deep." He pulled out a chair and pushed me into it.

I was compelled to repeat several times that I'd merely missed my coat at Paducah. Doc had a few money explanations for my tardiness. The waiter brought me a plate of tomato soup as dark as mahogany and I spooned into it, letting most of the silly commentary pass without answer.

Mr. Ed Boltinck said to me, "The captain told us you had been taken ashore under arrest."

I smiled at him, glanced at the scared, ashen face of Capt. Jellicoe and said: "I've made arrangements to sue him."

Capt. Jellicoe put his cup in its saucer with a clatter, threw his napkin beside it, and pushed his chair back. I poked a curious finger at an airmail envelope given to me by Russell, noticed its Philadelphia postmark and glanced up in time to see Jellicoe start for me, his wide face suffused with angry blood. Russell's hand clamped hard around the captain's arm.

"A joke, captain," Russell said mildly. "Mr. Wilde knows you merely made an honest mistake."

Capt. Jellicoe apologized and he choked his way through a clumsy phrase. He bowed very stiffly and stalked away from the table.

"Are we to assume, then," Doc asked blandly, "that you were not incarcerated?"

"Let it go, Doc," I said. "It's a poor joke. Don't ride it to death. Where's Miss Pomeroy?"

"Slaving," Doc said with an impish grin. "Odious company she is when she works. Nothing but light meters, cameras, flashbulbs and strange cabalistic mutterings about angles and density and such. There's nothing worse than a working woman. Takes the heart out of a man."

Most of the people at the table finished their food and began to drift away, slightly irritated that neither Russell nor I had done anything worth comment. Three uniformed stewards waited outside in the bar to conduct the passengers on tours of the old houses of Natchez and most of them wanted to get off in the first load. Boltinck dismissed his missus contemptuously when she left us.

He brought out his gold cigar case, selected an oily dark cigar and made a small ceremony of piercing it and getting it alight. "Old houses!" he snorted. "Get that woman anything, any single thing that isn't brand spanking new this year and she'll toss it back in your face. But she's nuts about old houses. Now why is that? She'll go miles to poke inside some old kitchen and she'll coo and gurgie about some rusty iron pot that she herself wouldn't give housework to. Now why is that?"

Doc Riggs took himself off to look for Ellen and remind her of their date to tour Natchez. Boltinck got up when Doc left. He touched Russell's shoulder and nodded to me. "Nasty business," he said briefly, obviously trying to display a neighborly concern. "Glad to see you're getting over it. Some price to pay for razor blades, eh?"

Russell said quietly to me, "By the way, Wilde, I wish you wouldn't mention anything about my family connection with the company." He got up. "See you later, Wilde. I've got work to do."

I watched him go out of the saloon and wondered why he wanted to make sure I said nothing about the fact that his mother owned the Delta Line. Then I forgot about it when I saw Ellen coming swiftly toward me.

"Carney!" She bent over my chair before I could get up. "Oh, Carney! Doc Riggs told me you were back. What happened? That odious captain said you . . ."

"He won't be saying anything more," I said grimly. "Nothing happened. A local FBI man wanted to know what I knew about Stewart. Our talk lasted too long and I missed the boat. Russell and I took a train to meet here. And that's all." Then I looked at her and said: "You're beautiful. Did you miss me? Sit down and have some lunch."

"I ate in the crew's mess," Ellen said absently. "I was taking pictures down below." She sat in the chair at my right and held my left hand warmly in both palms. "Don't do that again," she said softly. "I was frightened."

"Never again," I said fervently. "I must go soon," she said after a silent moment. "The lovely mangled Natchez. Come with me? I have to take pictures but not for long."

"I don't think so," I said. "It's time I did some sitting and thinking. Every time I've tried lately, I've gone to sleep."

"Well, go have a lovely nap, darling," Ellen whispered. "I'll only be a couple of hours, I think."

I walked with her to the main staircase and stayed there as she ran down to join Doc Riggs on the gangplank. She was wearing a dark plaid suit, a regimental plaid in solid blue and green with cross bars of yellow and white. Very subdued, but somehow gay. It was nice to see on her, especially the wide swirling skirt that whipped as she moved. She had Doc Riggs loaded down with half a dozen assorted leather cases, but he looked happy. And Ellen, I thought, looked magnificent. I went up to my room and my feet were dragging.

The night-time curtains in my room were still drawn tightly and I didn't touch them. I dropped my heavy coat on the bed, pulled a deep chair close to the smoking stand and sat there, twisting slightly so that my left arm rested against the padded chair.

I took out every fact that I knew about Stewart and went over them all in my mind, taking my time and making sure I had everything in balance, not shaded by the way I felt, but remembering events just the way they happened.

Stewart was an amateur, a one-time snatcher. But the getaway was slick, too slick. He must have had help.

What did I have? A helper who guessed Stewart's getaway, planned the details that would take Stewart safely out of the country. Next, an unknown on the Dixie Dandy who had clouted Russell and also had probably left a warning for me to get off the boat. And the hijacker, one or more.

I tried to relax. If I carried this on much longer I'd have every one of the 200 passengers on the boat involved somehow with Stewart. I smoked a cigaret through and then went back to it.

None of my outline was too far-fetched. Maybe one or two of the three unknown people would overlap. Maybe the helper was the same person who clouted Russell. In fact, there was no reason why he couldn't also be the hijacker, if there was one. So it could still be just one man, after all, though that didn't seem too likely.

Tomorrow we would be in New Orleans. And Capt. Grodnick would be there, surrounded by the FBI and the local cops. If I had something to offer them, maybe I could keep my foot inside the door, have a part at least in tripping up Stewart. That would be good enough for me. But with no ideas, with nothing to contribute, I'd be frozen out and that would be the end of Carney Wilde, Inc. I had to have something no one else had before we came to the New Orleans landing.

news behind the news

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower aggravated the Democrats' November fears with his recent economic analysis, boasting that the Administration had checked the 1953-54 slump and predicting that 1954 would turn out to be the second most prosperous and productive year in history. If Ike is correct, and there are those who disagree, the GOP believes it has a good chance to retain control of both House and Senate.

Although they will not admit it for publication, minority spokesmen on Capitol Hill declare ruefully that, if the congressional elections had been held six months ago, the Democrats would have swept both branches of the legislative body.

Unemployment was then at its peak, and in many areas there was the threat of more factory closings. Inventories were high, and the channels of production and distribution were choked with surpluses of goods.

The Senate and House liberals — Humphrey of Minnesota and Lehman of New York in the upper chamber, Patman of Texas and Cooper of Tennessee in the House — were taunting the Republicans on their policy of "hard money," which they blamed for the "recession."

Suddenly, the Treasury and the Federal Reserve, more responsive to new conditions than those agencies have been in the past, reversed their program, and eased the money and credit situation.

GAINS —

Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey and Commerce Secretary Sinclair Weeks insist that the last quarter of 1954 will show even greater economic gains.

They do not seem to be bliffling, for they have made these predictions in recent on-the-record "bull" sessions with newspaper correspondents at Washington. On Election Day, they forecast, the economic atmosphere will have a Republican tinge.

If so, the Democrats admit sadly, the GOP may increase its current House margin of three to 20 or 30. And the Democrats' one-man majority in the Senate may disappear. For both Republicans and Democrats agree that the dominant issue in November will be the nation's economic health, not McCarthyism, or any other ism, nor Korea, nor Indochina. It will be a bread-and-butter vote.

PLANS — To retrieve what seem like sagging political fortunes, the Democrats plan to put on a political show in November that would be worthy of a contest for the presidency. In the hope of regaining the White House in 1956, they are determined to rebuke President Eisenhower and the first Republican Administration in 20 years.

Every prominent Democrat will be drafted for the stump — Adlai E. Stevenson, former President Harry S. Truman, the members of the Roosevelt family, not engaged in election contests (Possibly Rep. Franklin D. Jr. in New York and James in California), Truman Roosevelt Cabinet servants, Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas, and any other Democrat with crowd appeal.

IMPORTANT — The Republicans will match this output and effort. Ike has long since abandoned his nonpolitical role, and will deliver several major speeches via television, and a few in person in key areas.

Now that he has been rescued from the Roosevelt-Michelson doghouse, Herbert Hoover may pitch into the fight. Speaker Joseph W. Martin Jr., Vice-President Richard M. Nixon and other congressional bigwigs will tour the hustings.

In short, both Democrats and Republicans regard the November off-year struggle as the most important in many years, for it may furnish a forecast of the presidential result in 1956.

TRIUMPH —

President Eisenhower has told friends that nothing has heartened and encouraged him so much as the White House victory in the struggle over farm price supports. Although Congress did not agree to the Eisenhower-Benson request for a 75 per cent parity minimum, Ike regards the compromise as his greatest triumph. He was fighting a powerful bipartisan bloc.

But Ike's real pleasure comes from the fact that he stood behind Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson, the Utah Mormon, when so many political and agricultural interests, all Republican, were demanding Benson's scalp. There were many communists, but not this one, who wrote that Benson would be asked to resign.

On the contrary, Ike lists the strong men of his Cabinet in this order—Humphrey, Benson, Wilson.

Dr. Speakman Takes Bride In Columbus Church Rites

Reception Is Held In Athletic Club

The altar of Trinity Episcopal church, Columbus, was banked with vases of asters, delphinium and gladioli, flanked by seven-branch candelabra, for the wedding of Miss Diana Spung and Dr. G. William Speakman.

Raising 6 Children No Problem To Big, Happy California Family

By HAL BOYLE
VALLEJO, Calif. (P)—How do you raise a child in the 20th century, which many people are beginning to regard as the century of juvenile delinquency?

I asked that question of my friend, Wyman Riley, managing editor of the Gibson publications here. He and his wife, Marjorie, have the problem of raising six children. How do they go about it?

"We don't think of it as a problem," said Riley. "And we don't have many set theories about it. We like children, and try to make our home so attractive they would rather spend their time there than elsewhere."

The rollout of the Riley offspring (and the Lord only knows whether it is complete yet) is as follows: Margaret 15, Ellen, 14, Brendan 9, Timothy 6, Michael 3, Sheila "going on one."

The Rileys live in a big, old-fashioned house, the kind that used to be built for large families, with plenty of yard space to play in. The house has four bathrooms, only one of which, Riley said, "is hung with my wife's clothing."

"Our home is big enough so that each kid has his own room," he said. "Each takes pride in his room and keeps it clean, and each kid has his own duties around the house."

"The older children help take care of the younger ones, and seem to like to. We are lucky in that we have two home-made baby sitters in our two older girls, and we pay them the going rate—50 cents an hour."

They are a close-knit family. Wyman and Marjorie both believe their main duties as parents are to teach their children good manners, give them a religious upbringing and keep them busy in a wholesome way. They say family prayers together each night, go on picnics or clam digging parties together on Sundays.

The Rileys have a television room, and eight school desks, painted a fire engine red, face the TV set—one for each child and two extra for their chums.

"We don't ration them on television," said Riley. "The only rule is that they must finish their home work before they can watch it."

"Comic books aren't a worry with us. We don't have them in the house. Our children are great readers, but we started them off with good books, and now they seem to prefer them."

"Our two oldest girls are becoming interested in social activities. If they want to go to a school dance, we take them there and we bring them home."

"There is a wading pool in the yard, and space to build tree houses and play games. The children like to help Marge in her hobby, gardening. She has planted tomato vines and other vegetables around the lawn. That may sound crazy, but, well, it looks nice."

What about movies?

"Our kids aren't particularly interested in movies," said Riley. "They don't have to go out of the home to find entertainment. They have more fun at home. They like to bring their friends home, and we encourage them to do so."

Few crises arise in the Riley household that require punishment.

"Restricting a child to his room, or cutting down his social activity in some way is enough," Riley said. "The important thing is to explain fully to a child why he is being punished and never to punish him until he does understand why. Then he will take it in good grace. Children have a pretty fair sense of justice."

"But exposition—explaining why one thing is right and another thing is wrong—works better than punishment. The mother sets them the example in most families, and our kids have been lucky in having the right kind of mother."

"I guess I sound like a pretty haphazard father, but actually our six kids are too happy to be much of a problem. We all like each other, and enjoy doing things together, and I guess that's pretty much the story."

Sokolsky's These Days

The Europeans, as well as the Canadians, are puzzled by a situation which they do not understand. They witnessed the Randall Commission travel all over Europe and they read the Randall report. No matter how one slices this document, it comes out as a free trade proposal.

They read the speech of so prominent a business man as Henry Ford, II, who advocates free trade. Then they discover that Congress ignores these great men and goes its own way. They do not understand our Congressional system which is different from their parliamentary system. They also do not understand that Americans do not take their great men very seriously.

So, they believe that they are about to get free trade and they will have here a ready market for their goods and they see the President raise the duty on Swiss watches; they note that the Uff bill has passed the House; they note the excitement over British bicycles and they wonder who has the authority to speak for whom in this country.

Congress, of course, has the constitutional authority and, no treaty intervening, Congress will do as it chooses. That is one reason why the Bricker Amendment would have been a sound method of preventing misunderstanding—every such arrangement would have had to be confirmed by the Senate after an open hearing before a Congressional committee at which interested Americans would have a voice.

Teen-Agers Held In Robbery Case

FAYETTEVILLE, W. Va. (P)—Six teen-agers from Ohio and Pennsylvania were held in county jail here after police said they stole a car at Fremont, Ohio, and robbed a grocery store near Red House, W. Va.

The gang includes three Fremont boys, Robert Perez and Charles Wayne Anderson, both 18, and a 16-year-old youth. Three girls, aged 13 to 17, are from McKees Rock, Pa. Police said they will be turned over to local authorities and may be charged with auto theft by the FBI.

By HAL BOYLE
VALLEJO, Calif. (P)—How do you raise a child in the 20th century, which many people are beginning to regard as the century of juvenile delinquency?

I asked that question of my friend, Wyman Riley, managing editor of the Gibson publications here. He and his wife, Marjorie, have the problem of raising six children. How do they go about it?

"We don't think of it as a problem," said Riley. "And we don't have many set theories about it. We like children, and try to make our home so attractive they would rather spend their time there than elsewhere."

The rollick of the Riley offspring (and the Lord only knows whether it is complete yet) is as follows: Margaret 15, Ellen, 14, Brendan 9, Timothy 6, Michael 3, Sheila "going on one."

The Rileys live in a big, old-fashioned house, the kind that used to be built for large families, with plenty of yard space to play in. The house has four bathrooms, only one of which, Riley said, "is hung with my wife's clothing."

"Our home is big enough so that each child has his own room," he said. "Each takes pride in his room and keeps it clean, and each child has his own duties around the house."

"The older children help take care of the younger ones, and seem to like to. We are lucky in that we have two home-made baby sitters in our two older girls, and we pay them the going rate—50 cents an hour."

They are a close-knit family. Wyman and Marge both believe their main duties as parents are to teach their children good manners, give them a religious upbringing and keep them busy in a wholesome way. They say family prayers together each night, go on picnics or clam digging parties together on Sundays.

The Rileys home has a television room, and eight school desks, painted a fire engine red, face the TV set—one for each child and two extra for their chums.

"We don't ration them on television," said Riley. "The only rule is that they must finish their home work before they can watch it."

"Comic books aren't a worry with us. We don't have them in the house. Our children are great readers, but we started them off with good books, and now they seem to prefer them."

"Our two oldest girls are becoming interested in social activities. If they want to go to a school dance, we take them there and we bring them home."

"There is a wading pool in the yard, and space to build tree houses and play games. The children like to help Marge in her hobby, gardening. She has planted tomato vines and other vegetables around the lawn. That may sound crazy, but, well, it looks nice."

What about movies?

"Our kids aren't particularly interested in movies," said Riley. "They don't have to go out of the home to find entertainment. They have more fun at home. They like to bring their friends home, and we encourage them to do so."

Few crises arise in the Riley household that require punishment.

"Restricting a child to his room, or cutting down his social activity in some way is enough," Riley said. "The important thing is to explain fully to a child why he is being punished and never to punish him until he does understand why. Then he will take it in good grace. Children have a pretty fair sense of justice."

"But, exposition—explaining why one thing is right and another thing is wrong—works better than punishment. The mother sets them the example in most families, and our kids have been lucky in having the right kind of mother."

"I guess I sound like a pretty haphazard father, but actually our six kids are too happy to be much of a problem. We all like each other, and enjoy doing things together, and I guess that's pretty much the story."

Man Repeats Plan For Free Steaks

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (P)—Joseph J. McDermott, 58, ate two steaks at a restaurant recently but couldn't pay.

The proprietor called the police.

After they charged McDermott with defrauding a restaurant, they asked why he ordered steak when he didn't have the money.

"I haven't had a steak since the last time I got arrested for the same thing," he replied.

The Europeans, as well as the Canadians, are puzzled by a situation which they do not understand. They witnessed the Randall Commission travel all over Europe and they read the Randall report. No matter how one slices this document, it comes out as a free trade proposal.

They read the speech of so prominent a business man as Henry Ford, II, who advocates free trade. Then they discover that Congress ignores these great men and goes its own way. They do not understand our Congressional system which is different from their parliamentary system. They also do not understand that Americans do not take their great men very seriously.

So, they believe that they are about to get free trade and they will have here a ready market for their goods and they see the President raise the duty on Swiss watches; they note that the Uff bill has passed the House; they note the excitement over British bicycles and they wonder who has the authority to speak for whom in this country.

Congress, of course, has the constitutional authority and, no treaty intervening, Congress will do as it chooses. That is one reason why the Bricker Amendment would have been a sound method of preventing misunderstanding—every such arrangement would have had to be confirmed by the Senate after an open hearing before a Congressional committee at which interested Americans would have a voice.

Teen-Agers Held In Robbery Case

FAYETTEVILLE, W. Va. (P)—Six teen-agers from Ohio and Pennsylvania were held in county jail here after police said they stole a car at Fremont, Ohio, and robbed a grocery store near Red House, W. Va.

The gang includes three Fremont boys, Robert Perez and Charles Wayne Anderson, both 18, and a 16-year-old youth. Three girls, aged 13 to 17, are from McKees Rock, Pa. Police said they will be turned over to local authorities and may be charged with auto theft by the FBI.

Chamber Offers Free Movie On Road Problems

Adam Hamm, executive secretary of the Circleville Chamber of Commerce, has announced that the civic organization is taking request for loan of an up-to-date, 26-minute motion picture film on highway problems.

The movie, "Give Yourself the Green Light", is a 16-millimeter sound film in full color. There is no charge for use of the film, but Hamm emphasized that all request must be filed with him by Oct. 4. Any group desiring to show the film will be expected to secure its own projector.

The film deals with the growing need for better farm-to-market roads, urban thoroughfares, superhighways, and the problems of small town traffic and big city congestion. Lack of parking space—a matter of timely interest to Circleville—will be an important detail of the story.

Hamm said he believes that local service, farm, church and civic clubs, along with parent-teacher organizations and other groups, will welcome the opportunity to show the film to their members. However, he has emphasized the need for filing requests early with the Chamber.

The movie will be available here for one week, beginning Oct. 4.

Chamber Offers Free Movie On Road Problems

Adam Hamm, executive secretary of the Circleville Chamber of Commerce, has announced that the civic organization is taking request for loan of an up-to-date, 26-minute motion picture film on highway problems.

The movie, "Give Yourself the Green Light", is a 16-millimeter sound film in full color. There is no charge for use of the film, but Hamm emphasized that all request must be filed with him by Oct. 4. Any group desiring to show the film will be expected to secure its own projector.

The film deals with the growing need for better farm-to-market roads, urban thoroughfares, superhighways, and the problems of small town traffic and big city congestion. Lack of parking space—a matter of timely interest to Circleville—will be an important detail of the story.

Hamm said he believes that local service, farm, church and civic clubs, along with parent-teacher organizations and other groups, will welcome the opportunity to show the film to their members. However, he has emphasized the need for filing requests early with the Chamber.

The movie will be available here for one week, beginning Oct. 4.

Tarheel Star Is Talk Topic At Tourney

DETROIT (AP)—Top-flight golfers, just like the fans like to talk about the long hitters and there is one player here for the 54th U. S. Amateur Golf Championship who already has been the subject of innumerable locker room debates.

He is Dave Smith, a hulking North Carolina automobile dealer who remained in the tournament for today's third round by grace of luck, long drives and a miserable round by two-time former champion Willie Turnesa.

Smith ousted Turnesa, the last of five former champions in the tournament, by a 4 and 3 margin to go into today's double round of 18-hole matches.

When long, wild hitting was up for discussion, there was only one who could give Smith an argument, Savannah's Hobart Manley. Most players who have gone up against both say that big Dave from Gastonia, N. C., has it all over Hobart in that department.

Smith is 6 feet 4½ and weighs 235 pounds.

When he stepped up to the tee on the 365-yard first hole in his opening match and belted a drive that stopped only seven yards short of the green, pro Al Watrous cracked:

"If he plays like that he's going to have to move out of North Carolina. There won't be room enough in the state for him to practice."

Autoist Killed
TOLEDO (AP)—A bus-auto collision in downtown Toledo was fatal yesterday to Mrs. Delia Mae Rowe, 44, of Liberty Center, a passenger in the car.

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Cincinnati Redlegs meet the Brooklyn Dodgers for the last time at home tonight, and as far as the Rhinelanders are concerned the engagement is one they could just as well do without.

Actually, the Reds, who had a breather Monday when a game with Milwaukee was rained out, could well use another after last night's 12-4 defeat at the hands of the Brooks.

The Dodgers, breathing hard on the tail of the front-running Giants, whistled four home runs out of the park and 12 assorted other hits.

New Readiness Plan Unveiled

WASHINGTON (AP)—Defense Mobilization Director Arthur S. Flemming has ordered into effect a new plan for keeping the nation's military production facilities in readiness for a quick leap into all-out war production.

The order, effective today, calls for payments to private industry to maintain in production condition idle equipment considered essential to full war production. It also includes arrangements for keeping together key production personnel and for keeping production techniques and finished products up to date.

A spokesman for Flemming said this would cost "several hundreds of millions of dollars a year."

The forecast, which runs through next Sunday, predicts temperatures will be from five to seven degrees above normal and the weather will be warm and humid. Only one-half inch or less of moisture is forecast, and the rain may come before the fair opens Friday.

CLEVELAND (AP)—Prosecutor Frank T. Cullitan says that Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard, indicted on a first-degree murder charge in the death of his wife, wants police to give up the keys to his home, the scene of the killing.

Cullitan said the handsome, 30-year-old osteopath wrote a letter in his jail cell to Bay Village Police Chief John Eaton demanding that Eaton turn over to his lawyers the keys to the house and a list of all personal property removed from it. Cullitan advised Eaton not to release possession of the house except upon a court order.

State Fair, Like County's, Arranged As 'Family Affair'

Both Big Exhibitions To Put Accent On Youth; Ohio's Event Opens Friday, County's Sept. 15

The 1954 Ohio State Fair, like Pickaway County's own big agricultural display, will be a family affair with a heavy accent on youth.

The State Fair, which opens in Columbus Friday will close Sept. 3. And less than two weeks after that date, the big Pickaway County exposition for 1954 will swing open its gates at the fairgrounds here. New record high attendance figures were anticipated for both programs.

Thousands of district residents were planning to visit the gigantic state exhibition, and then round out their season of fair-going at the Pickaway County event.

The State Fair management has arranged eight days of sight-seeing, competition and entertainment. The county fair will cover four big days.

GATES FOR the state display will open at 6 a. m. next Friday and close the following Friday night after the Horse Show. Emphasis will be on comfort while viewing the wealth of educational exhibits, and enjoyment, rather than on "packin' 'em in."

More drinking fountains, flowing with cool water, will be installed to eliminate standing in line on hot days, more benches will be placed in shady spots, better ventilation of buildings will be provided and additional rest rooms will be readied.

One hundred acres of parking space will be marked out north of Seventeenth Avenue, and parking, under the direction of the State Highway Patrol, will be so arranged that space in the fairgrounds proper will be reserved for exhibits or entertainment.

Livestock exhibitors will be assigned to a special area north of the Sheep Barn to keep trucks and trailers from impeding visitors as they walk from building to building.

Grounds will be hung with flags and banners as a welcoming gesture to the throngs of visitors, and flowers of all hues will bloom in beds of artistic design. Ornamental fronts will decorate building entrances and fresh coats of paint will brighten up exterior trim.

A significant ceremony will mark the first day of the Fair, traditionally celebrated as Youth Day. At 9 a. m., in the presence of members of all participating youth groups, Governor Frank J. Lausche will preside at the dedication of the new Youth Building, funds for which were authorized by the 100th Legislature in 1953.

HERE WILL be centered all housing, eating, exhibit and recreational facilities for the Junior Fair, with a capacity of 1200. The center, in year-round use, will be self-supporting.

Thus will be initiated the far-reaching plan, long dreamed of by Ohio State Fair enthusiasts, now made possible by the purchase of 200 additional acres, stretching north of Seventeenth Avenue. In addition, authorization has been given to an architect's blueprint for the future—to cover planning and gradual construction of new buildings on the expanded grounds.

Other features of the third annual Youth Day, to which all grade and high school students of the state will be admitted free, will be the parade of floats representing all state-wide organized youth groups at 2 p. m. A band concert will precede the parade at 1:30 p. m.

Veterans and Armed Forces Day on Sunday, Aug. 29 will be highlighted by a reunion of Ohio's famous 37th Division, now home after service in Korea. Both General Leo Kreber and General Robert Beighler will attend, and the 37th Division colors will be honored.

Sunday is also press, radio and television day. During the remainder of the week industrial and business leaders and flying farmers will be among the groups honored.

The big M & M Building, new last year, will be occupied by the Merchants and Manufacturers Exposition under the management of James E. Humphreys. Booths here will show an array of goods that will tell the story of the manufacturing and merchandising process of the great industries of Ohio.

IN MANY of their exhibits, and in other booths and buildings throughout the grounds, do-it-yourself products and processes will be featured in line with the policy of catering to the family group.

Each evening during the eight days a wide variety of entertainment will be available. The big Night Horse Show will begin at 7:30 p. m., Friday through Friday, with classes for hunters, jumpers, saddle horses, fine harness ponies and Western breeds. The American Saddle Horse Breeders Futurity of Ohio is scheduled.

Three different entertainments have been planned for the night Grandstand shows—an outdoor life, circus and thrill show on the first three nights, the State Fair Revue the next four nights, and a big thrill show on the last Friday.

Six afternoons the fastest-growing sport in the country—racing of trotters and pacers—will be the Grandstand attraction, climaxed by the featured Government's Cup event on Thursday, Sept. 2.

The Junior Fair calendar is filled with activities for lively teen-agers. Tractor rodeos, contests of skill, style revues, judging contests, demonstrations of farm and home projects, and crowning of the FFA Queen will fill their days. Each evening frolics will be enjoyed, including round and square dances, quiz programs, round-table discussions and group singing.

The Fair management promises a fine time for the children also. The fish pond has been freshly stocked, and plenty of fishing poles will be on hand.

PICNIC TABLES for outdoor meals will be scattered over the grounds and concessionaires will stock plenty of toys and souvenirs to delight the youngsters. The big midway will be filled with the latest in rides and thrills, including the colorful spectacle, Dancing Waters.

Of interest to farmers and breeders of fine stock will be the national breed shows which are bringing outstanding exhibitors to the Ohio exposition.

Included are the National Percheron Show, American Belgian Horse Show, National Shorthorn and Polled Shorthorn Shows, All-American Brown Swiss Futurity, National Corriedale Sheep Show and national meets of Rhode Island Red, Langshan, Black Minorca and Partridge Cochins Bantam poultry.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Dixon, this city's smallest parents, have taken their first child home from the hospital.

The baby, Debra Jo, weighed 5 pounds 14 ounces when born by Caesarean section Aug. 10 at French Hospital. The parents are each 3 feet 11. Dixon is 35, his wife 37. The hospital sent the mother and child home yesterday.

planes took part in the mission and all returned safely to Formosa. The drops were reportedly made in Hupei, Hunan, Anhwei and Kiansi provinces.
